Professional Photo Ethics

How very lucky we are as seedstock producers to have talented professional photographers at nearly all of the major cattle shows! These professionals are there to provide a service. Just as your veterinarian, fitting crew, sales managers, and ad designers all provide a service - services that you would never question paying for. Why then, do some producers choose to forgo paying for their professional backdrop or ringside photos and instead copy the watermarked images off of the photographer's website and share these images, typically via their social media accounts? It is truly unprofessional and, in a business, where image and reputation are of high importance, I would say, without a doubt, that you would be better off to not share any photos of your show cattle than to share watermarked images that you have clearly not paid for. You are stealing from the professionals who have taken those photos, and it reflects poorly on you, your operation, the breed(s) you represent and the industry as a whole. Next time you wish to share your show success via Facebook, please purchase your images from the photographer. Consider it an investment in not only the promotion of your operation, but also your reputation.

SILENT AUCTION FUNDRAISER

2018 Canadian Junior Limousin Association Scholarship Winner Announced

For Immediate Release

November 19, 2018

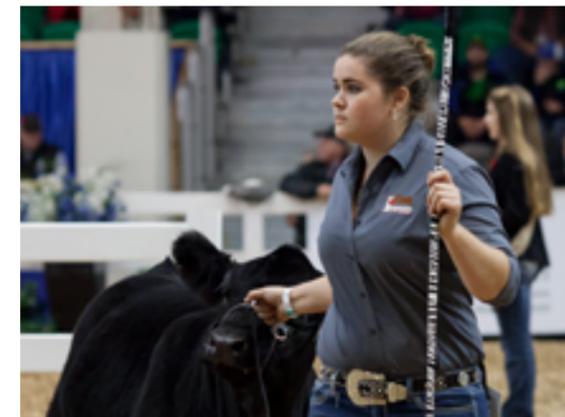

Calgary, Alberta - The Canadian Junior Limousin Association is pleased to award our 2018 Scholarship to Nicole Scott of Oxford Mills, Ontario. Nicole was chosen by this year's committee from a strong group of deserving applicants.

Nicole with her parents, Don and Donna Scott, sister Laura and younger brother Joe operate Scott Farms, of which Spare Time Livestock is a division. They calve a herd of about 20 cows – consisting of purebred animals, as well as Limousin influence females. In addition, they also crop just under 1,000 acres of corn, soybeans, spring wheat and hay. Nicole is in her second year of at Lakeland College in Vermillion, AB studying Animal Science. Nicole and her sister Laura are featured in the Junior Perspective article of the December edition of the Limousin Voice. Nicole has been a CJLA member since 2011 and has participated in many junior shows across the country. Nicole is eager to help out the younger generation of junior's and is always keen to lend a helping hand where needed.

"One of the best things that I think comes with be in a junior association, is to be able to mentor the younger generation. Especially right now, there are a lot of younger members that are just starting up that aren't entirely sure what they're doing. Being able to give them pointers and help them out when needed and be someone that they look up to is probably the best part of being a member in a junior livestock association" wrote Nicole in her application.

The Canadian Junior Limousin Association would like to congratulate Nicole and thank all that applied for this year's scholarship. Thank you to everyone for supporting the fundraising efforts of the CJLA as through your contribution scholarships and travel opportunities are made possible.
