

LIMOUSIN

THE NATURAL GENETIC ADVANTAGE FOR YIELD

Limousin genetics add value from birth to beef, improving feed efficiency, live weight gain, carcass performance, dressing percentage and yield grade, without sacrificing tenderness. Their ability to produce lean, flavorful meat so demanded by consumers makes them sought after by every segment of the beef value chain.

“ IN THE PASTURE Trevor Atchison
700 HEAD COMMERCIAL COW/CALF OPERATION, MANITOBA

Limousin is the best fit for a leaner product; it can really work well with those British-influenced cattle. There's enough of a wide base of genetics now in the Limousin breed that it can fit the maternal line or whatever you want to match it to, and I think that's where it's going to.

“ AT THE PACKER Murray Shaw
BLUE WATER BEEF, ONT.

We've found that the carcasses are more desirable with the Limousin influence. As long as they have about 50 percent Limousin, the carcasses don't have nearly as much waste that needs to be cut up.

“ IN THE FEEDLOT David Clark
CLARK MEATS, ONT.

The Limousin and Limousin cross calves gain well in the feedlot, and their cutting percentage and dressing percentage and lean meat yield is just fantastic, compared to any other breed. Limousin meat is a fine-textured, tender beef.
