Dr. Roy Lewis

Dr. Roy Lewis Graduated from the Western College of Veterinary Medicine in 1981 & was a partner at the Westlock Veterinary Clinic until Jan 2013. His passion as large animal practitioner for years mainly in bovines (commercial cattle & purebred herds) brought out his interests in preventative medicine, fertility in bulls & cows as well as animal welfare. He has written numerous producer articles in magazines such as the Cattlemen, Simmental country, the Western producer & The Limousin Voice. Roy also teaches and examines the veterinary students at the University of Calgary. He is also part of a family owned purebred cattle (900 cows) grain and 400 acres of potatoes mixed farming operation near Spruce Grove Alberta.

Cynthia Beck

Cynthia Beck is a Master's student in the Clinical Psychology program at the University of Regina. She works as a research assistant in the Online Therapy Unit and provides suicide intervention response services to south east Saskatchewan. Cynthia and her husband, Wade, along with their two children, farm in partnership with Wade's family. The Becks operate a mixed farming operation of cattle and grain near Milestone, SK.
